foregrounding indigenous knowledge systems, resistance movements, and the impacts of colonialism and globalization on local ecologies. As such, it provides a more inclusive, diverse, and critically engaged understanding of environmental issues, emphasizing both local agency and global interconnectedness.

Understanding Ecocriticism of the Global South

Definition and Scope

Ecocriticism of the Global South refers to the study and critique of environmental representations, practices, and policies within countries traditionally categorized as part of the Global South?regions characterized by their colonial histories, developmental challenges, and rich biodiversity. Unlike Western ecocriticism, which often centers on issues of industrialization, consumerism, and nature writing, ecocriticism of the Global South prioritizes themes such as colonial legacies, environmental justice, indigenous rights, and resistance to extractivism.

This field interrogates how literature, media, and cultural narratives in these regions depict nature, human-environment relations, and socio-political struggles. It also critically examines the ways in which global environmental discourses intersect with local realities, often revealing power imbalances, marginalization, and resistance.

Historical Context and Development

The emergence of ecocriticism of the Global South is rooted in broader postcolonial and decolonial theories that critique Western dominance over knowledge and ecological practices. It gained momentum in the early 21st century as scholars recognized that environmental issues cannot be fully understood without considering historical legacies of colonialism, economic exploitation, and cultural marginalization.

Key milestones include:

- The recognition of indigenous ecological knowledge systems as valuable and legitimate.
- The focus on environmental injustices faced by marginalized communities.
- The integration of literary and cultural studies with environmental activism.

This field is characterized by its interdisciplinarity, drawing from postcolonial studies, anthropology, environmental history, and literary criticism.
